Denver Scholarship Foundation named a Top Workplace in Colorado by The Denver Post

Denver, Colo. – Denver Scholarship Foundation (DSF) announces that the organization was named one of The Denver Post’s Top Workplaces for 2019.

As a first-time winner of the award, DSF ranked #4 out of 65 in the category of small companies, and was also recognized as the winner of the “Best Communication” special award, given to the company or organization whose team members feel communication is most transparent and inclusive, and feel most informed and included in decision making, among other criteria.

“We are deeply honored by the recognition, not only because it celebrates the incredible, diverse, inclusive culture of our DSF team, but also because we were nominated by a team member and the results are directly related to DSF staff survey results,” said Lorii Rabinowitz, chief executive officer of DSF. “To receive this award, based on staff feedback, makes the recognition even more special.”

DSF has nearly 60 employees, including five DSF Alumni recipients of the DSF Scholarship, who base in the organization’s headquarters, one of 14 DSF Future Centers located in Denver Public Schools high schools, or one of three college campuses.

The annual Top Workplaces list recognizes the best companies to work for in the state and is based solely on employee feedback compiled by Energage, LLC., a leading provider of technology-based employee engagement tools. The survey focuses on various aspects of workplace culture, including alignment, execution and employee connection.
